 AUGUSTA HERITAGE CENTER – BLUES WEEK

Every July aspiring blues musicians of every age and ability gather in the mountains of Elkins, WV for Blues Week, an award-winning music camp run by the Augusta Heritage Center. Students come from across the country to immerse themselves in acoustic blues traditions, culture, and history. Days are spent learning from master musicians, and nights are spent jamming, often until the sun comes up. It is a one-of-a-kind experience of creativity, renewal, and inspiration.

Saffire has been at the heart of Blues Week from the program’s earliest days. Gaye, Ann, and Andra Faye have not only taught countless students to be better musicians, but also to find their own voices, to take chances, and to connect more deeply with others. The Saffire Legacy Scholarship Fund was established to celebrate the 25-year journey of the Uppity Blues Women and to ensure that their creative spirit continues to inspire new generations of acoustic blues musicians.
